

Fenêtre d'Arpette

Fenêtre d'Arpette is amongst these myths of the Trient range. In addition of being a variation of the Tour du Mont Blanc, it provides also some beautiful viewpoints onto Trient Glacier. This mountain pass is also well-known for its steepness. In fact, either on the Trient side or on the Arpette side, the last meters are extremely steep but without danger.

To start, we will take the enjoyable path that runs along the watering channel of Trient-Combe before climbing towards the Fenêtre. As we will climb up, the view onto the Trient Glacier will become wider. On the other side, we will go down the wild vale of Arpette in order to reach Champex-Lac.
